In electromagnetism, current density is the amount of charge per unit time that flows through a unit area of a chosen cross section. The current density vector is defined as a vector whose magnitude is the electric current per cross-sectional area at a given point in space, its direction being that of the motion of the charges at this point.

Current density - Wikipedia

An electric current is the rate of flow of electric charge past a point: 2: 622 or region.: 614 An electric current is said to exist when there is a net flow of electric charge through a region.

Electric current - Wikipedia

The term electrosurgery (also called radiofrequency surgery) refers to the passage of high-frequency alternating electrical current through the tissue in order to achieve a specific surgical effect.
